Adriana May

I have lived in the townhomes of the Corsica community for the past three and a half years with my brother and my son. Corsica is our home, and I believe homeowners deserve to understand how decisions are being made, where their money is going, and how those decisions affect their homes, families, and property values.

I believe our HOA should operate with transparency, accountability, open communication, and respect for the residents it represents. Homeowners should be able to ask questions, receive clear answers, and have a voice in decisions affecting our community.

I have worked for Baptist Health South Florida for seven years and currently work in the Social Work Department at West Kendall.

I am willing to serve because I want to help create a community where homeowners feel heard and respected. I want residents to have access to information, understand how their money is being spent, and feel comfortable asking questions. I want decisions that affect our community to be made openly and with the interests of the homeowners in mind.

I am willing to dedicate my time to listening to residents, reviewing information carefully, asking questions, and helping find solutions when concerns arise. I do not believe serving on an HOA board should be about controlling a community. It should be about representing the people who live in it.

Corsica belongs to all of us. I want our community to be a place where homeowners feel comfortable coming home, confident that their voices matter, and proud of the neighborhood we share.
